Remarks as Prepared for Delivery

When abortion is on the ballot, we win.

In California, Kansas, Kentucky, Michigan, Montana, Ohio, and Vermont, voters sent a message: Come for our rights, and we'll come roaring back.

And it seems like every day, another state gets added to that list.

Let's hear it for Arizona and Montana—the latest states to announce that the people will get to have their say this November!

Because voters who support reproductive freedom aren't the minority. We're the majority!

If there are two people who should understand that Americans' private lives are none of anybody's business, it's Donald Trump and JD Vance. Instead, Trump brags about overturning Roe v. Wade. And if you want to know what he'll do in office, Google Project 2025.

Kamala Harris has her own project for 2025: restoring reproductive freedom.

It's simple: Do we want a president who said women should be punished for having abortions, or a president who trusts women? A vice president who voted against protecting fertility treatment, or a vice president who used fertility treatment to start a family? A president who created the crisis we're in, or a president who will fix it?

This election will decide America's future. So let's elect Kamala Harris and Tim Walz!
